

Over the past month, ITMF has engaged in many events reporting information about sustainability, economic trends, and innovation to stakeholders in the textile value chain.

At the 82nd Plenary Meeting of the International Cotton Advisory Committee, we emphasized the impact of global sustainability regulations, exploring how diverse policies across major markets affect both the cotton and textile sectors. Through collaborative efforts, such as those promoted at the CICCAs Plenary Meeting, we continue to strengthen connections within the cotton and textile industries. Our involvement in the World Textile Merchandising Conference also highlights our dedication to driving industry advancements that align with evolving consumer and market needs.

ITMF attended the CICCAs Plenary meeting in Liverpool

On October 17, 2024, in Liverpool, the Committee for International Cooperation between Cotton Associations (CICCA) convened its plenary meeting alongside the International Cotton Association (ICA) Trade Event. The International Textile Manufacturers Federation (ITMF) was invited to present its cotton-related initiatives, including the International Committee on Cotton Testing Methods (ICCTM), the Spinners' Committee, and the cotton-focused fibre session from its Annual Conference. These presentations were well received, highlighting the ITMF's active role in the cotton sector. Various cotton associations are advocating for stronger ties between the cotton and textile industries to enhance collaboration and address shared challenges.
