

Table of Contents

- Trans-Pacific Partnership boosts regional textile trade page 2
  - TPP unites heterogeneous economies.
  - TPP corresponds to about one-third of world trade.
  - Reduction of tariffs and trade barriers.
  - Opportunities for stronger regional trade in textile and apparel.
  - Positive outlook for Vietnam’s textile industry.
  - The troublesome yarn forward rule.
  - TPP will boost regional economy and trade.

- Global economy improves only gradually page 8
  - Rough start into 2016.
  - Gradual economic recovery in developed economies continues.
  - 2016 should end economic downward trend in emerging economies.
  - Risks to economic outlook are tilted to the downside.
  - Economic environment for textile and clothing industry remains challenging.

- Nothing can beat a real shop page 12
  - Outlook for private consumption is positive.
  - Apparel retail sales in top ten markets is expected to increase.
  - Internet retailing gains popularity.
  - Store based retail remains most important distribution channel.

- Global Cotton Yarn Trade 2005-2014 page 15
  - China is the largest importer of cotton yarns.
  - Main exporters of cotton yarns.
  - Largest importers of cotton yarns.
  - EU-28 is the 2nd largest importer of cotton yarns.

- Cotton’s challenges in today’s textile value chain page 21
  - China’s cotton policy.
  - Price competition from man-made fibres.
  - Innovations in man-made fibres.
  - Demand destruction.
  - Lessons to be learnt.

- Monthly chart update page 25